CORELLI, Marie, novelist; of mingled Italian and Scotch (Highland) parentage and connections; adopted in infancy by Charles Mackay, the well-known song-writer and littérateur, and brought up during childhood in England. Afterwards sent to France and educated in a convent, where she received, with other instruction, a first-class musical training. She commenced to write an elaborate opera entitled Ginevra Da Siena, when barely fourteen. She also wrote two songs, My Sweet Sweeting, and Romeo's Good-Night. Her first attempts in literature were three sonnets on Shakespearian themes, and were published by Clement Scott, then editor of The Theatre. They were entitled Romeo and Juliet, Rosalind, and Desdemona, and were written while still at work on her musical education; her adopted father's intention being to fit her entirely for a musical career. A curious psychical experience occurring to herself personally, caused her to write her first book, A Romance of Two Worlds, published in 1886. It was an instant success, and from that time she has devoted herself entirely to literature. She has never, however, abandoned her love of music, and is a proficient on the piano and mandolin. She has no particular hobbies except a great love of flowers, and a taste for collecting rare old books, of which she has many unique specimens. Her favourite recreations are reading and music. She is unmarried. At the end of 1897 a dangerous illness, nearly ending in her death, interrupted her work, and while slowly recovering from this during the spring of 1898, George Eric Mackay (second son of Charles Mackay), who had been nominated at his father's death as her legal guardian, being many years her senior, died suddenly of pneumonia, leaving her entirely alone in the world. The shock of this bereavement prostrated her again with serious illness, and it was not till the end of April 1899 that she recommenced her literary labours, and in fifteen months produced Boy, a sketch (a short story contracted for previously to her illness in 1897), and The Master Christian, both published in the summer of 1900. Her health is now fully re-established. She has given up her house in London, and resides in Stratford-on-Avon. Publications: A Romance of Two Worlds, 1886; Vendetta, 1886; Thelma, 1887; Ardath, 1889; Soul of Lilith, 1892; Barabbas, 1893; The Sorrows of Satan, 1895; Mighty Atom, 1896; The Murder of Delicia, 1896; Ziska: the Problem of a Wicked Soul, 1897; Jane, 1897; Boy, 1900; The Master Christian, 1900; Temporal Power, A Study in Supremacy, 1902.

Delivered the Bakerian Lecture of 1901 to the Royal Society on the Nadir of Temperature and Allied Problems: (1) Physical properties of liquid and solid hydrogen; (2) Separation of free hydrogen and other gases from air; (3) Electric resistance thermometry or the boiling-point of hydrogen; (4) Experiments on the liquefaction of Helium at the melting-point of Hydrogen; (5) Pyroelectricity and phosphorescence. His investigations include the following: Hydrogenium, Pyridine, and Chinoline Bases; Physiological Action of Light; Problems of Spectroscopy; Liquefaction of Gases; Low Temperature Investigations, involving the scientific use of Liquid Oxygen, Air, Fluorine, Hydrogen. Was the first to obtain liquid and solid hydrogen. By evaporating liquid hydrogen under diminished pressure the lowest temperature ever reached, viz. 13° absolute, or 470° F. of frost was attained. At this nadir of temperature hydrogen became a frozen foam-like mass, air a rigid inert solid; only Helium of known gases remained uncondensed resisting liquefaction. Pure metals cooled to this temperature became almost perfect conductors of electricity. Publications: numerous papers contributed to the proceedings of the Royal Societies of London and Edinburgh, the Royal Institution, the British Association, the Chemical Society, etc. Address: 21 Albemarle Street, W.; 21 Scroope Terrace, Cambridge. Clubs: Athenaeum, Garrick.
